Weather Determines Price of Reporting Tool List & Label Special Summer Discount Promotion from August 01 - 30

Constance/Germany 08/02/2013 – This August the weather determines the prices of German software producer combit at the Summer Special discount promotion. The higher the temperature rises in the companies' hometown at the Lake of Constance, the more discount customers get off the regular list price of reporting tool List & Label. The promotion runs from Monday to Friday until August 30, 2013.

"After the coldest spring since 1959, we enjoy a record-breaking summer, which will now be financially rewarding for our customers." Explains Managing Director Brita Dannenmann and continues: "At the combit Summer Special the weather determines our prices throughout the month of August. You should keep cool and place your order at the right time!" The temperature in Constance is determined at 09:00 a.m. (CEST) on www.wetteronline.de in degrees Celsius. This value is taken in percent for the discount of the day. So if, for example, in the morning at 09.00 a.m. 24° Celsius is measured, customers get 24% off award winning report generator List & Label if they place their order that day.

About List & Label

With List & Label software developers extend their applications with powerful reporting functions and have access to every kind of data processing and data exchange, in classic applications as well as in web reporting or in the cloud. In comparison to other reporting tools, List & Label offers the greatest flexibility regarding evaluable data types, supported programming languages and the number of export and barcode formats. The List & Label Designer is available in multiple languages and can be integrated in the application without additional royalties so that end users can create reports too.
